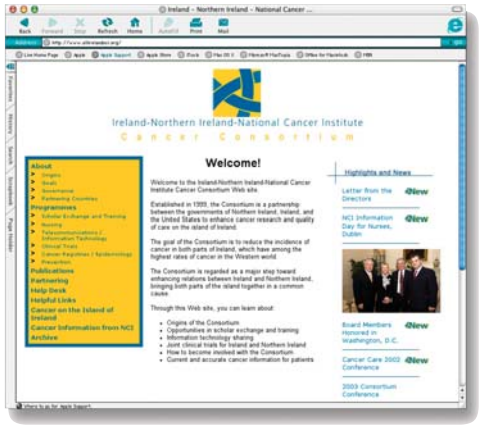
Outreach

A Consortium priority is keeping the public, cancer professionals, and public health professionals in the three partnering jurisdictions apprised of its activities and programmes. The Consortium maintains a user-friendly Web site, publishes an annual newsletter, and supports a Help Desk to assure the prompt dissemination of important information.

CONSORTIUM WEB SITE



www.allirelandnci.org

The Web site is updated regularly with news and information about the Consortium's programmes. Oncologists, nurses, scientists, students, policymakers, and others can access information about training and education opportunities, download publications, and learn about upcoming meetings. The site also provides links to the partner organisations' Web sites.

NEWSLETTER

The 2003 Consortium newsletter was published in the summer. The newsletter is distributed to a broad group of cancer researchers, health care practitioners, and other interested individuals and organisations in the three jurisdictions and elsewhere. The newsletter covers recent Consortium activities, highlights people involved in the Consortium, features photographs of meetings and other events, and contains contact information for the Consortium. The Consortium invites interested recipients to provide their contact information through the Web site or Help Desk.

HELP DESK

The Consortium manages a Help Desk for assistance in connecting with the participating partners. The Help Desk provides telephone and e-mail concierge service that will direct you to the right person for training opportunities information or will provide answers to general questions about Consortium programmes.
